Clark County Homemakers and Community Education H.C.E.) are women and men interested in learning new and better ways of improving the quality of living for themselves and their families. There are 6 community clubs with approximately 70 active members.

Lessons are taught several times each year and may include information about family and child development, food and nutrition, home management, housing and equipment, and safety and health. Issues involving citizenship, community outreach, cultural arts and international understanding are addressed through lessons, as well as county-wide activities.

Extension Agents, Family & Consumer Sciences across the state serve as advisors and resource persons. The Ohio State University Extension is a cooperative venture of the Ohio State University, the United States Department of Agriculture and Clark County Commissioners. If you are interested in joining a club or forming one in your area, you may contact the Clark County Office of Ohio State University Extension, 328-4607.
